ADORATION is back in the CHAPEL Renovation is not quite complete yet, but the Chapel is now usable! We may need to move back to the main church at some point when flooring is being laid, etc., and, next weekend when we will have a special “40 Hours Devotion”. But for the most part... Adoration is back in the Adoration Chapel! We’ve installed additional insulation and a separate small A/C - Heating unit, which should stabilize the temperature in the room, and regular ventilation will still be into and from the room. We will not have blankets nor cushions in the Chapel – something we learned from our covid time – to cut down on cloth objects. So if you still want to have a blanket, or a cushion for the pew, please bring your own with you, and then take it home with you. New flooring will be installed once the Sacristy rooms are finished being updated. May you give God glory, and may you be blessed in your Holy Hours!

Adoration Chapel renovation... Were you one of the kind people who in the past brought in a lap blanket or a cushion for anyone who wanted to use one in the Adoration Chapel? Back then, it certainly was chilly in there at times, so thank you! As our renovation is now nearing completion, we won’t be keeping blankets nor cushions in the Chapel – something we learned from our covid time – to cut down on cloth objects. The ones from before are in a box in St. Joseph’s Room, so if you provided one in the past, including two cushions brought in fairly recently, you can pick it up from there and take it home. We’ll keep them in SJR for a couple of weeks, and then we won’t be keeping any that are left after that. The insulation and other renovations for the Adoration Chapel seem to be working well for regulating the heating/cooling, but if a person still wants to have a blanket during their Adoration Hour, or a cushion for the pew, please bring your own with you, and then take it home with you after your Hour. ☺

PASTOR’S NOTES

After more than twenty months, we are finally back in the Adoration Chapel with perpetual adoration. The new floor will be put in after the renovation of the sacristy area—the old confessionals will become part of the sacristy area for acolytes and servers. There will also be some insulation put into the ceiling. There is also a unit (“mini-split”) which is helping to regulate the temperature with heating/air-conditioning, so that our adorers will not be distracted by cold/heat. Special thanks to Jim and Alice Ulrich for their design work, Herm Scholl for carpentry and furniture moving, Chuck Schreiber and Jacob Schuette for electrical work and Dave Brink for painting, not to mention the people that helped with the final touches (putting the Stations back, etc.). The contributions of Larry Rolfson and Sue Stevens go without saying. And more are in the process of finishing the project. God bless you all!

That being said, we will be back in the church with adoration next weekend, due to our Forty Hours observance with Fr. Dietrich. You are invited to come to the opening (with Evening Prayer) at 5:30 P.M. on Friday. We ask that all weekend adorers spend their hour in the main church beginning with 5 P.M. on Friday and continuing through the 10:30 Mass on Sunday. Other parishioners are invited to come at any time for a short visit or a long one. Fr. Dietrich (Fr. York’s last assistant pastor here) will give a short opening talk at 5:30 on Friday and preach at the weekend Masses. We have adoration going on here all the time, but this is an annual opportunity to remember why we do this. Jesus, really and truly present, Body and Blood, Soul and Divinity, is here for His people to be loved, honored, and adored. Stop in for a visit!

It has been said that many Catholics no longer believe in the Real Presence. It could be argued that if they no longer believe (or never did), they are not really Catholic. We could be more charitable, I think, and say that they simply do not understand the Good News that is being proclaimed to them. The difference between believers and agnostics (“there may be a God or there may not be—I am not sure”) or atheists (“there is definitely no God”) is that we know, based on a firm foundation, that God is indeed active and present in the world He has made and continues to hold in existence. He is here for His people. That is the heart of the message of the Incarnation, the doctrine that we highlight during Advent, Christmas, and Epiphany. Emmanuel—God is with us! That is the core of the “Christmas” message and the real “reason for the season.” Everything else we do this time of year is gravy, but that message is the meat and potatoes that gives depth and meaning to all our “holiday” celebrations.

The priests will be in Palmyra for deanery day late Tuesday afternoon and early evening. Thursday morning is school confessions, and Friday is the First Friday of December and the priests will be visiting the homebound with the sacraments that day. God bless our acolytes who bring Holy Communion on Sundays (mostly).

Advent is the beginning of the new liturgical year—it will be Year “C” (mostly St. Luke’s Gospel) on Sundays and Year II on weekdays. Some argue that the real beginning of the Church year is Easter Sunday or Pascha, when “all things are made new.” Advent is a beautiful and often under-appreciated season of the Church year. Even though we all are “busy,” we have the chance to reflect on the wonder of what our God has done for us. We are not only remembering what He has done for us two thousand years ago in sending His only-begotten Son, but also remembering that Jesus will come in glory in the future, the Second Coming, and that, in fact, He comes to us now in His Word and in His sacraments. Come, Lord Jesus!
